For an example of such photographic documentation see Julia Schulz-Dornburg and Oriol Nello, Modern Ruins: A Topography of Profit (Berlin: Aedes, 2013).3 Marcinkoski, The City That Never Was, 16.4 In their edited collection, Interrupted Cities, Shirley Ann Jordan and Christophe Lindner consider epiphenomenal acts of disruption carried out by artists and performers seeking to disrupt the speed of cities (of development, gentrification, securitization and other processes). See Shirley Ann Jordan and Christophe Lindner, "Visual Culture and Interruption," in Cities Interrupted, ed. Shirley Ann Jordan and Christophe Lindner (London: Bloomsbury Academic, 2016), 1-6. My use of the term "interruption" refers to the arrested development of new city projects. I am grateful to Akshara Khaitean who suggested the term as a lens through which to consider Amaravati.5 On "fast urbanism" see Ayona Datta and Abdul Shaban, Mega-urbanization in the Global South: Fast Cities and New Urban Utopias of the Postcolonial State (New York: Routledge, 2017). Datta has also argued that a "rhetoric of urgency" is sometimes used to "justify the speeding up of law-making, regulations and policies to enable a new city to quickly materialise." Ayona Datta, "New Urban Utopias of Postcolonial India," Dialogues in Human Geography 5, no. 1 (2015): 5-6 Here, I place "city" in scare quotes to suggest that many of these developments call into question the fundamental conditions of urbanity, in this sense. Marcinkoski's The City That Never Was examines projects that misunderstand the very nature of what a city is. For additional examples of such new city developments in India, see Datta, "New Urban Utopias."7 The States Reorganisation Commission, "Report of the States Reorganisation Commission," New Delhi, Government of India, 1955, 9.8 K. Nageshwar, "Parliament, State Legislature and Bifurcation," Economic and Political Weekly 49, no. 3 (January 18, 2014): 30.9 Mahendra Prasad Singh argues that the central government has ignored "rationality and financial viability" in the determination of new state creation, often yielding to political interests and expediency. Mahendra Prasad Singh, "A Borderless Internal Federal Space? Reorganization of States in India," India Review 6, no. 4 (2007): 245.10 Lloyd Rudolph and Susanne Hoerber Rudolph locate the figure of Chandrababu Naidu within a new federal economy in which chief ministers "are seen on front pages, covers of news magazines and television screens, making and breaking coalition governments [and] welcoming foreign statesmen." Lloyd I. Rudolph and Susanne Hoerber Rudolph, "Iconisation of Chandrababu: Sharing Sovereignty in India's Federal Market Economy," Economic and Political Weekly 36, no. 18 (May 2001): 1541.11 Haynes and Rao point out that apart from these well-known examples, the Indian state built 118 towns between 1947 and 1981. The three examples cited here are particularly relevant for their role as administrative capitals. Douglas E. Haynes and Nikhil Rao, "Beyond the Colonial City: Re-Evaluating the Urban History of India, ca. 1920-1970," South Asia: Journal of South Asian Studies 36, no. 3 (2013): 329. Along with administrative capitals, the decades after independence saw the development of three other types of new city: for the settlement of refugees after partition; for industrial towns; and for new peri-urban towns that facilitated the growth of existing cities.12 Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's involvement in the development of Chandigarh—from intervening in disputes about tapestries in the High Court building to staffing decisions—has been widely documented. See Peter Fitting, "Urban Planning/Utopian Dreaming: Le Corbusier's Chandigarh Today," Utopian Studies 13, no. 1 (2002): 75-13 Singh, "Borderless Internal Federal Space," 245.14 Michael Goldman and Devika Narayan, "Through the Optics of Finance: Speculative Urbanism and the Transformation of Markets," International Journal of Urban and Regional Research 45, no. 2 (2022): 209-15 Goldman and Narayan, "Optics of Finance," 214.17 Carol Upadhyaya, "Assembling Amaravati: Speculative Accumulation in a New Indian City," Economy and Society 49, no. 1 (2020): 142-18 Upadhyaya, "Assembling Amaravati," 143-19 Upadhyaya, "Assembling Amaravati," 148-20 In a workshop on Amaravati's development, the APCRDA identified nine "Investor Classes," or potential sources for financing for the purchase of land. These included land monetization (discussed below), central government schemes, convertible bonds, multilateral and bilateral banks, public private partnerships, the domestic debt market, the selling of equity stakes through pension and infrastructural funds, the international debt market and the sale of bonds. APCRDA, "Amaravati Deep Dive Workshop: Liveability, Economic Powerhouse, Infrastructure, Governance," presented at The Gateway Hotel, Vijayawada, India, December 14-15, 2017.21 Surbana International Consultants was previously known as the Building and Development Division of the Housing Development Board. Jurong Town Corporation was responsible for the development of industrial estates. Increasingly, Surbana Jurong's role has been to export Singapore's development and planning model to countries across Asia, leveraging the city-state's reputation for efficiency to promote the value of their consulting services. In 2018, the company employed a workforce of 13,000 operating in 113 offices across 43 cities with an annual turnover of S$1.3billion. See C. P. Pow, "Constructing Authority: Embodied Expertise, Homegrown Neoliberalism, and the Globalization of Singapore's Private Planning," Environment and Planning 50, no. 6 (2018): 1209–27.22 Surbana Jurong, "Amaravati, Capital City of Andhra Pradesh," Key Projects, Ascendas-Singbridge has built eight information technology parks in five Indian cities and has planned 28 cities across Asia. Mia Tahara-Stubbs, "Ascendas-Singbridge and Sembcorp Win Amaravati Urban Development," Project Finance, May 17, 2017. The contracting of Ascendas-Singbridge through a "Swiss Challenge" bid was sharply contested by Indian developers who felt unfairly shut out of the process. Ananya Roy and Aihwa Ong (Oxford: Wiley-Blackwell, 2011), 1–26.26 This point is made in Tim Bunnell, "City Networks as Alternative Geographies of Southeast Asia," Trans-Regional and -National Studies of Southeast Asia 1, no. 1 (2013): 27–43.27 Vikramāditya Prakash, "Messy Work: Transnational Collaboration in Chandigarh," in Messy Urbanism: Understanding the "Other" Cities of Asia, ed. Manish Chalana and Jeffrey Chou (Hong Kong: University of Hong Kong Press, 2016), 176.28 Traditional vastu practices described in ancient architectural manuals were rooted in religious beliefs, astronomy and planetary alignments. In recent decades, vastu has seen a resurgence and is applied to nearly any scale of building among certain communities. See Joseph Aranha, "Old Tradition, New Applications: 'Vaastu' In The Contemporary Built Environment In India," Traditional Dwellings and Settlements Review 24, no. 1 (2012): 17–18. "Vaastu considerations" also determined the north-south orientation of the Government Complex and the situation of its axis between hills located to the north and south.29 Because Amaravati's boundaries encompassed 26 villages as well as riverfront "multi-crop" tracts, the LAA clauses may have impeded a swift appropriation of land. The "multi-crop" tracts would also have been off-limits under the LAA. For more on the APCRDA's rationale for land-pooling, see Vakulabharanam and Prasad, "Babu's Camelot," 69–78.30 APCRDA, Amaravati Project Report, 4th ed., February 2019, 20.31 APCRDA, "Amaravati, The People's Capital: Innovative & Inclusive Land Pooling Scheme, Vijaywada," APCRDA Project Report, 2018, 31.32 N. S. Sathya Sai Baba, Welcome To Esri India User Conference: Securing Land Records through Blockchain, APCRDA PowerPoint Presentation, Hyderabad, India, September 6, 2018, 7.33 The capital was announced in August 2014 and the site finalized in September. The land-pooling scheme was unveiled in December. In March 2015, the land-pooling scheme was completed, with 33,000 acres transferred from landowners to the APCRDA. The first lottery to assign returned lands took place on October 1, 2016; the final lottery on January 25, 2017. The scheme thus took several months to secure land transfer through land-pooling and from two to two and a half years to assign returned lands. APCRDA, "Amaravati, The People's Capital," 33. This timeline can be compared with the Sivaramakrishnan Expert Committee's original estimate that any land-pooling scheme would require four years to implement barring any project delays. K. C. Sivaramakrishnan et al., Report of the Expert Committee appointed by the Ministry of Home Affairs, Union of India to Study the Alternatives for a New Capital for the State of Andhra Pradesh (New Delhi: Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, 2014), 6.34 For a discussion of some of these strategies see Dag Bergesen Kolstø, "Amaravati: The Making of a Disaster Capital in Andhra Pradesh?" Economic & Political Weekly 54, no. 20 (May 2019), updated May 20, 2019. For an account from the perspective of the tenant farmers and laborers impacted by the capital development project see M. Suchitra, "Capital Punishment," Down to Earth, updated July 7, 2015. Upadhyia describes a "new class of 'real estate' brokers [who] appeared in capital region villages to cater to this new market, operating out of small, brightly painted shacks hastily erected along rural roads, or circulating on motorcycles in search of prospective customers." Upadhyia, "Assembling Amaravati," 142–44.37 For a description of the "peg marking" process used to demarcate the new plots using a differential global positioning system, see APCRDA, "Amaravati, The People's Capital," 89–90.38 APCRDA, "Amaravati, The People's Capital," 117. Vakulabharanam and Prasad argue that this move toward real estate speculation is accompanied by the privileging of capital accumulation and moneylending, leaving little room for farming and labor as economic drivers. Vakulabharanam and Prasad, "Babu's Camelot," 70.39 Upadhyia, "Assembling Amaravati," 154.40 The Flood Mitigation Works also included three new reservoirs for the site and an eight-kilometer-long gravity canal. For a description of the current flooding conditions and the scale of the mitigation plan see Andhra Pradesh Development Corporation Limited (ADCL) and APCRDA, "Amaravati Flood Mitigation Works: Environmental Impact Assessment, Environment Management Report," APCRDA Project Report, August 2018.41 APCRDA, "Smart City Amaravati: Integrated Infrastructure Master Plan," March 2017. In an assessment of the rationale for funding Amaravati's development, The World Bank describes the project's use of integrated infrastructure and land-pooling as innovations that could be applied to other parts of India. The World Bank, "Amaravati Sustainable Capital City Development Project (P159808)," Project Information Document (PIDISDSC17980), August 8, 2016, ADCL and APCRDA, "Amaravati Deep Dive Workshop: Infrastructure: Water, Waste Water and Storm Water" (presented at The Gateway Hotel, Vijaywada, India, December 14–15, 2017, 19–22).44 In February 2019, three residential tower clusters, representing 3,888 residential units, were 47.1 percent, 47.2 percent and 48.6 percent complete respectively. The projects were expected to be completed in the fall of 2019, with a total construction time of between fifteen and seventeen months.
